2018 Illinois Women’s And Family Health Conference

SPRINGFIELD – The Illinois Department of Public Health is hosting its annual Illinois Women’s and Family Health Conference in Normal on June 5-6, 2018. This conference helps public health and community organizations bring about new information and ways of thinking to improve the health of women and families. Being able to share information and build on programs through collaborations will help Illinois become one of the healthiest states in the nation.

WHO: Illinois Department of Public Health

WHERE: Illinois State University
Bone Student Center
Normal, Illinois

WHEN: Tuesday, June 5, 2018 – 9 a.m. Welcoming and Opening Session.

WHAT: Workshop topics include:
- Sobriety: Powerless to Powerful
- You are the Key to Cervical Cancer Prevention
- Transforming your Health Center into an Adolescent Centered Environment
- Infant and Early Childhood Mental Health Consultation: How to Help Those who Work with Families
- Girls and Sex: Navigating the Complicated New Landscape
- The Canary in the Coal Mine: What Maternal Morbidity and Mortality Teach Us about Women’s Health
- Pregnancy Risk Assessment Monitoring System (PRAMS) – The Best Source of Data on Illinois Mothers and Babies
- The History of the Socio-ecology of Care: How Medicine in the Past Impacts Implicit Bias Today
- Linking Pregnant and Parenting Women to Home Visiting Services Using the Adverse Childhood Experiences (ACE) Questionnaire
- Self-Care for Those Who Care for Others

###